St Andrew's wins its first international contract

Monday 13 Mar 2017

St Andrew's Healthcare has achieved a new first, by winning an contract to provide care to forensic patients on the Atlantic island of Bermuda.

As a small island with only 80,000 residents, Bermuda has limited facilities to support those with complex mental health conditions. As a result, a number of people with mental illness are currently held in the island's prison system.

A review of this approach by Bermuda's government led to St Andrew's being invited to offer support. The Charity was successfully selected from a list of numerous healthcare providers in December, was awarded the contract at the end of February.

Three male patients are now set to travel to Northampton as part of St Andrew's Men's Mental Health Pathway, with up to nine further patients due to join St Andrew's in the coming months.

Dean Howells, Executive Director of Nursing and Quality said: "This is great news. Not only does this contract brings the charity income from new sources, but much more importantly, it gives our potential services users a much improved opportunity of recovery, thanks to our personalised and holistic approach to care. The new contract means that we can extend our reach and transform more lives."
